LEXINGTON, VA., AUGUST 13, 1902.

The Thrust of a Lance is scarcely more agonizing than the recurrent pains in the abdomen which follow the eating of improper food or too free indulgence in ice-water. The immediate cause of cramps and colic is often the distention of the bowels by gas. Quick relief follows the use of Perry Davis' Painkiller. Careful housekeepers give it the place of honor in the family medicine chest.

An Afflicted Colored Family.

About six months ago John Styles, a colored man living nearly opposite the Institute died suddenly from heart disease. On August 4th the members of the family received notification that John Styles, Jr., a son of the dead man, had died in Pittsburgh from sunstroke. On Sunday Harry Styles, aged about 25 years and another son, died from consumption. A daughter, aged about 20, is in extremis with consumption and her death is expected at any time. From what we learn they are highly respected colored people, and receive the sympathy of all the people acquainted with their condition. John Styles, Sr., was a slave of the late Colonel John Jordan.

Death of William M. Brown.

A letter received by Mr. John Withrow this week from his aunt, Mrs. E. J. Barton, who lives in Taylor, Texas, announces the death of Wm. M. Brown at Austin, Texas, on August 2nd. Mr. Brown was a son of the late Rev. Henry Brown, and shortly after the war moved to Texas, where he became prominent in social and business life. At one time he was Comptroller of the State, and at the Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta in 1885, held the responsible position of Superintendent of the Government Building. During the war he was a member of the famous Rockbridge Artillery, and he is pleasantly recalled by his comrades living here. He was married in his adopted State, and leaves a wife and four children.

A street preacher named Otey, hailing from Texas, has been haranguing crowds of white people and idle negroes the past week in the streets of Lexington. It was thought at first he was an escaped lunatic, but his talks showed him to be a man of education. His unkempt appearance, with hair reaching to his shoulders, gave him the appearance of an attaché of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. He expects to remain here this week.

Death of Grether B. Ruff.

The sudden death Sunday night of Grether B. Ruff at his father's home on the southern suburb of Lexington, was a shock to the community, as few persons knew of his extreme illness until the report of his death was circulated. He was taken ill early Saturday morning with appendicitis and rapidly grew worse until shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night, when he passed away. During his short illness his sufferings were intense. Although opiates were given to lessen his pain, he remained conscious to the end.

Grether Bell Ruff was born Nov. 27, 1884 at Longwood, Rockbridge county, where his parents then lived, and was a second son of Mr. E. M. Ruff. His mother was a daughter of Capt. John R. Wills, now of Florida, a brother of the late Captain Jayhugh Wills of Lexington. He was a member of the Baptist church and was a young man of earnest piety. He was an affectionate son and brother, and was greatly interested in all matters pertaining to his home. He had charge of the agricultural business during his father's ill health, and later during his enforced absence from home attending upon the bedside of his father, Mr. Wm. A. Ruff, in his tedious illness.

The funeral took place at his father's residence Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by Rev. T. A. Hall of Lexington Baptist church. Interment was made in the Lexington cemetery. A large crowd of relatives and friends attended the services.

Did Wm. A. Bayne, Jr., Steal the Horse?

A case was tried in the County Court last Friday which has excited much comment as to whether the accused was innocent or guilty. William A. Bayne, Jr., on the 12th of May left his home to come to Lexington. He stated that he was overtaken by a man riding a horse bareback and the man asked him to ride the horse to Lexington and when he arrived there to put him on a certain side of a hitching lot so he would easily find him when he got there, and that he expected to come on as soon as a wagon came up and go in it. Bayne got no further than Kerr's Creek that night where he was arrested by Constable McKeever, and tried by Magistrate H. H. Teaford and sent on to the county court. This case came up on Friday. The horse was stolen beyond a doubt, but the man who entrusted the horse to Bayne to bring to Lexington or Bayne himself steal him?

The jury that sat in judgment upon the case was James A. Wilson, J. W. Culton, Reuben Bare, I. G. Copper, H. T. Lunsford, A. M. Zollman, John A. McHenry, J. R. Mackey, Timothy Hogan, R. E. Johnston, J. Henry Leach, and E. W. Montgomery. After hearing all the evidence the jury were equally divided, six for acquittal and six for conviction, and being unable to agree were discharged. F. T. Glasgow defended the accused, Robert Catlett, commonwealth attorney, prosecuted.

A Virginian For President.

Under the above caption the Richmond Times of recent date, in its editorial columns, mentions the name of Judge Erskine M. Ross of Los Angeles, Cal., as a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency. The Times says:

"The Ross argument is a very plausible one. Judge Ross is one of the strongest men in the far West. He is Southern through and through. The Democratic party would be losing without the South, and the West is closely allied. Ross's supporters are demanding recognition in the leadership of the party. Ross can carry both sections by storm. Also by his conspicuous success at the bar and his highly conservative course on the Federal bench, he has demonstrated his ability to hold high office; and he has won the confidence of the North and East."

Judge Ross is a native of Culpeper county, Va., and is a brother of Col. J. D. H. Ross of Lexington. He was educated at the Virginia Military Institute and was with the cadets in their memorable charge at New Market. Removing to California after the war, his ability at the bar won him rapid advancement. For a number of years he has occupied a conspicuous place as United States Circuit Judge. Some of the California newspapers, notably the Los Angeles Express, are his ardent supporters for the presidency.

Masonic.

Mountain City Lodge of Ancient York Masons on Monday night installed their officers elect for the current year as follows: J. Will Moore, worshipful master; J. McD. Adair, senior warden; Robert Catlett, junior warden; A. T. Shields, secretary; C. G. Dold, treasurer; William Adair, senior deacon; C. R. K. Varner, junior deacon. Frank Moore, the retiring worshipful master, gracefully surrendered his gavel and authority and responsibility to the incoming officers, who took charge and conducted the affairs of the Lodge to its close.

Many memories are stirred up in the breast of the "old-timers" when he visits this Lodge. Tastefully arranged around the large and beautifully furnished room are photographs, of a large size, of worshipful masters, who have controlled and shaped the destiny of the craft in Lexington for the last half a century. Away back in the fifties the venerable James Camp'ell, John C. Bonde, Judge William McLaughlin and others of later years, such as John T. Gibbs, Calvin M. Dold, Charles A. Davidson, J. Scott Moore, John T. Wilson, Samuel D. Baker, Dr. A. D. East, Finley S. Houston, V. B. McClure, R. E. Hutton, are names of men who are pictured on the walls, recalling a glorious past of the brethren of the "mystic tie."

Birth-Day Services.

BUENA VISTA, August 12.
Last Sunday was an occasion of special interest among the Methodists of Buena Vista, it being a celebration of the birth-day of their pastor, Rev. C. H. Buchanan. Large and attentive congregations attended both services, and special music, finely rendered by the choir, added no little to the interest and enjoyment of the program.

The morning sermon, from the text, "I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God," was a masterly discourse and made a profound impression upon the audience. One of the older members of the congregation pronounced it the finest sermon ever delivered in the Methodist pulpit of Buena Vista. Others considered the night sermon, from the text, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning," etc., even better than that of the morning. Expressions of appreciation and admiration were made by those who were privileged to hear these sermons from their faithful, earnest preacher.

The church and Sunday school have both steadily improved under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Buchanan, and Buena Vista Methodists consider themselves fortunate in having such a lively, conscientious, eloquent minister. SPECTATOR.

Sick unto Death.

A painful suspense has been endured by the people of Lexington on account of the condition of Wm. A. Ruff, who at this writing lies critically ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. S. Eads, near Falling Spring Church. It is believed his sickness is unto death, on account of his advanced age, now in his 76th year. Before another issue of THE GAZETTE this honored and useful man may have joined the silent majority.

Another citizen of Lexington, who has been hovering between life and death for the past three days, is William P. Hartigan. Prostrate with an affection of the brain that responds to no treatment, paralyzed and unconscious, the final summons is hourly expected. His brother, Mr. Robert Hartigan, of Roanoke, is a watcher at his bedside.
